

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

VOL. XXI.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1893.

NO. 59

WILLIAMSBURG, WHITLEY COUNTY.

—There was a considerable frost Sunday morning.

—A party went to the Falls Sunday to be absent a week.

—Rev. Cornelius filled the pulpit at the Baptist church Sunday.

—Mr. J. S. Morris, of Beattyville, was here attending court last week.

—Mr. Walker Mason will leave this week to visit his old home in Madison county.

—The young people of the Christian church will organize a Young People's Christian Endeavor Society next Sunday afternoon.

—Monday was county court day. There was a small crowd in town. The candidates for the various offices in the county spoke at the court-house in the afternoon.

—The churches of Williamsburg have organized a branch society of the American Bible Society and purchased about $60 worth of bibles which are on sale at E. M. Huguey's.

—The Williamsburg Academy opened with about 80 students Monday. It is well equipped with teachers, and those desiring to attend a home-like school in a quiet town would do well to come here.

—Mrs. Dr. Moss was on the sick list last week. Mr. Willard Ames who has been sick with the fever will be out again soon. Mrs. J. T. Freeman and daughter, Miss Nellie, have returned from a visit to relatives at Cumberland Gap.

—Circuit court adjourned Saturday evening after a four week's session. A great many cases were tried and all of the long criminal cases are now off of the docket, and may be when the January term begins there will be time enough to clean up the civil business.

—Dr. P. A. Pennington and Mr. Wm. Perkins have returned from the World's Fair. Mr. J. M. Ellison attended the World's Fair last week. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. White were also there. James A. Butler, who is teaching school at Corbin, spent Sunday here. Mrs. Householder, of Middlesboro, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Will Jones, returned home last week. Miss Carrie Myers is visiting relatives in Mt. Vernon for a few days.

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

—Garrard College has more than 100 students and a great many more are expected.

—Rev. C. H. Greer has been engaged to preach at the Methodist church another year.

—Services will be held at the Baptist church Sunday night. Sermon by Rev. C. H. Greer.

—M. Braun, of Louisville, is here for a few days. Mr. J. R. Marrs, of Richmond, was here this week.

—A large majority of our citizens are for the water works. The fire Tuesday shows how badly they are needed. That end of town has comparatively no protection from fire, as to pull the engine out there by hand is about out of the question and in fact no attempt was made to take it.

—The handsome residence of Judge W. E. Walker came very near being destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. It caught from some unknown cause in a closet up stairs and had gained considerable headway when discovered. The closet and adjoining room were badly damaged and several holes were cut in the roof by the firemen. The residence was insured in one of Kinnaird & Farra's companies and they went to work at once to adjust the loss.

MT. XENIA.

—Mrs. P. H. Idol's children are convalescent.

—Miss Bettie Bronaugh, of Missouri, is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

—The Mt. Xenia school has closed on account of diphtheria in the neighborhood.

—Words are inadequate to express the deep sympathy which flows out from this vicinity for Mr. and Mrs. John M. White for the loss of their two children last week of diphtheria. It is hard to realize that within two days the remorseless reaper, death, has cut down two treasured darlings who were the joy and life of home. That these bright buds of promise have been taken to bloom around the throne of Him who has said, "Suffer little children to come unto me." Two short weeks ago the house echoed with their childish merriment. Now these sweet voices are hushed in death; and those bright eyes that were wont to follow us with loving glances are closed now never to open on earth. Never will the writer forget the picture of perfect purity made by little Hallie a few nights before the Death Angel came. The little white-robed figure kneeling to say, "Now I lay me," seemed too pure for earth. So God took her, and she was not separated from the little playmate brother even in death. May the grief-stricken parents and sisters remember that the "Lord loveth whom he chasteneth," and bow submissively to God's will.

—Small pox is epidemic in Brooklyn,

LONDON, LAUREL COUNTY.

—Mr. Miller, a German citizen of Bernstadt, committed suicide Monday. Jealousy was the cause.

—Mr. B. P. White and son, James, of Manchester, were here Tuesday. Hons. H. C. Eversole, W. R. Ramsey and R. L. Ewell are attending court at Booneville.

—Our ball club will go to the Barbourville fair Tuesday prepared to meet all comers in the contest for a prize of $100 offered by the fair, and here's dollars to doughnuts that they take the prize in.

—Charles R. Brock and wife and H. P. Brown, Jr., left for the World's Fair Sunday. S. A. Lovelace left for the same place Wednesday night. Judge Vincent Boreing returned Thursday from Washington and other points East.

—As Messrs. E. K. Wilson and A. L. Reid were returning from East Bernstadt Wednesday evening their horses got frightened, upsetting the buggy and bruising Mr. Wilson considerably, in fact he swears that every rib in his right side is broken.

—"Courting" Theo. Moren is erecting a dwelling house on his lot opposite Masonic Hall. Dame Rumor has it that when it is completed he will not occupy it alone. Here's luck to you, Theo.—but then one can't help sympathizing with the young lady.

—Marriage license has been issued to the following parties during the past week: Robert Price to Miss Armelia Logan, Edward C. Young to Miss Eliza Craft, George String to Miss Lucy Evans, John H. Tate to Miss Lebecca Branson, Thomas Courtois to Miss Cheresa Haake, W. F. Barnett to Miss Eliza J. McFadden.

—London Seminary is on a boom this year. Nearly 200 pupils have been enrolled and new ones are coming daily. The faculty is a splendid one and if our citizens will do even half their duty, ere long we can boast of the best school in Eastern Kentucky.

—Messrs. Sam Morrow and Evan Petrus, of Somerset, are visiting Geo. Riley and James Williams, Jr. "Cheap" Jim Peary and Mark Hardin are taking in the World's Fair this week. J. H. Baumgartner, of Stanford, stopped off here Wednesday. He had been to Barbourville looking after his interest in the "fair" at that place. Hon. W. B. Catching has returned from the East. Messrs. D. B. Logan and — Ayers, of Pineville, and Judge George Saulsbury, of Middlesboro, were here on legal business Monday. Judge Charles Short, of Pineville, was with us Wednesday. Messrs. Jas. H. Garrard, and J. A. Clark, of Manchester, passed through London Thursday on their return from Frankfort.

DANVILLE.

(Advocate.)

—The merchants say that local trade is getting better.

—The county instructed Monday for Col. Welch for senator.

—Judge M. C. Saufley has decided that Mr. Charles C. Fox was legally elected to the office of city attorney over Mr. W. O. Goodloe.

—Assessor George H. Hocker is a candidate for re-election to that office. He has made a splendid assessor and will and should be a hard man to beat.

—G. T. Dunn and Miss Mamie Dunn, the pretty daughter of W. H. Dunn, of this place, were married at the bride's residence at 1 o'clock Tuesday, Elder J. L. Allen performing the ceremony.

—Judge Joseph Jackson died at the home of his son-in-law, James R. Marrs, in this city on Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, from general debility incident to old age. He had passed into his 87th year, having been born April 27th, 1807, near Walnut Flat, in Lincoln county.

Mrs. C. W. Watson died at Mitchellsburg and Mrs. Wm. Cox near McDonald's Chapel.

—Georgetown College now contains the larger part of Mr. John Pulliam's family. Prof. Jack Pulliam and his three sisters, Misses Eugenia, Bessie and Minnie; the two former teaching, the two latter attending college, while Mr. George Pulliam will soon take charge of a farm near Georgetown, leaving only the old folks and two children, Miss Lucinda and William, at home, Prof. R. L. Pulliam being at his post at Richmond.

—Smith Baughman, of Lincoln, bought here Monday of Underwood Bros. five mare mule colts at $56. A. G. Whitley sold to J. C. Johnson 13 fat hogs at 5c. Clover seed is quoted here at $4.25. It will probably go higher than this pretty soon.

—W. L. Caldwell, Jr., while at the World's Fair, sold to an agent of the President of Salvador, Central America, a yearling jack for $675. Mr. Caldwell received $1,205 in premiums on the jack stock which he exhibited.

—And how is your table?" asked the prospective boarder.

—Splendid," said the landlady. "Why it's so rich that people are dying of indigestion in my house all the time."

—Mister, gimme a dime; I'm a victim of the Indiana train robbery." "How were you the victim?" "I didn't get any of the stolen money, see?"—Chicago Record.

ROWLAND.

—Our three new stores are in full blast and doing a good business.

—T. J. Hammond, of Garrard, passed through this place on his return from Middleboro where he had been to sell his crop of hay. His reports of the Magie City are favorable.

—The people in and around Rowland will be sorry to learn that Dr. J. A. Amos will move to Buckeye, Garrard Co., about Oct. 1st, to practice his profession. While we hate to lose such an able physician we hope that he will be successful in his new field.

—Mrs. W. H. Dudderar has recovered from an attack of malarial fever. Miss Sallie Dudderar has returned from Louisville. Ollie Hiatt is clerking in the post-office. Mrs. Brack Graves, of Livingston, is visiting Mrs. George Pope. Mr. L. B. Parsons, of Lebanon Junction, is at home for a few days. Miss Evie Anderson, of St. Marys, is visiting Miss Lena Carter.

—Miss Maggie Steele, of London, is visiting Mrs. James Carter. Capt. Ed Hughes of Paris, has been conducting the K. C. train in the absence of Capt. Kirby, who is attending court at Richmond. Master Wm. Shelton has gone to Louisville to attend school. Ed Dudderar has been home to see his father. J. M. Murphy has returned from Lexington where he has been to see his sick brother. Arthur Pearce has returned from the World's Fair, delighted with his trip.

—Quite a sensation was created Tuesday afternoon when the report came that Mr. Isaac Hamilton and Mrs. Susan Harris had driven to Lancaster and married. In behalf of the entire community we tender our congratulations to him and our best wishes to her. About 9 o'clock that night after the happy couple returned 30 men convened in front of Mr. Hamilton's residence and dispensed some excellent music, whereupon the genial gentleman appeared and gave an elegant treat, the effects of which could be seen the next morning, in misplaced signs, barrels, barrels, plank-walk and the like.

—Died, at her residence near Rowland on Tuesday last, of inflammatory rheumatism, of which she had suffered for a number of years, Aunt Betsy Spoonamore, in her 70th year. Funeral services were held at the residence by Eld. J. G. Livingston and a long procession of friends followed the remains to Buffalo Cemetery for interment Wednesday. She was the wife of Samuel Spoonamore, with whom she had traveled over both the rugged and smooth paths of life for 56 years. They had three sons, only one, Tinsley, surviving her. She was baptized by Eld. Livingston about two weeks before her death. Her many amiable traits of character were well known by her neighbors and she was queen of one of the most hospitable homes in the country. An indulgent mother and affectionate wife has passed into eternity and many will miss her. Let us hope that the bright light of Divine Truth will hover about the once happy home and that the family will be united in that blissful abode beyond the confines of time.

—In the more experienced circles, where a knowledge of human nature prevails, a certain class of men is noticeable because of the peculiar effect their presence produces on the nerves and actions of all those with whom they come in contact. Such persons are known as "Hoodooos" and are shunned by many people as was the witch of Salem. Perhaps the best developed individual of this class that has lived in modern times is Lewis Withers, of Stanford. Various incidents are related of the wonderful power he exerts in thwarting the best arranged plans of the best men. His mere presence seems to turn order into chaos. John Duncan, a reputable gentleman of Garrard county, relates that not long since he went to Stanford to spend the night with his sister, Mrs. R. C. Warren. When he mounted his sure-footed saddle mare to return, he was accosted by Withers, who only shouted, "Hello, Duncan," when the mare took a running fall of 50 yards, badly disfiguring her front limbs. Although Duncan's watch remained in his pocket, it stopped running and the most skillful watchmaker has failed to tell why. He entered a printing office in Lancaster and all the type in "form" was instantly " pied," and the compositors, although not aware of his presence, failed to follow the copy and the proof sheets read in various languages like the different tongues at the building of the Tower of Babel. It will pay to shun this kind of watchmaker.

—Smith Baughman, of Lincoln, bought here Monday of Underwood Bros. five mare mule colts at $56. A. G. Whitley sold to J. C. Johnson 13 fat hogs at 5c. Clover seed is quoted here at $4.25. It will probably go higher than this pretty soon.

—Splendid," said the landlady. "Why it's so rich that people are dying of indigestion in my house all the time."

—Mister, gimme a dime; I'm a victim of the Indiana train robbery." "How were you the victim?" "I didn't get any of the stolen money, see?"—Chicago Record.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—Silas Richardson obtained license yesterday to marry Miss Delia Wall. Both live at Highland.

—John Griffin, a widower of 26, and Mrs. Arlie Morgan, a widow of 27, were married at Oak Chapel School-house in the Waynesburg section, yesterday.

—Miss Helen Murphy, of San Francisco, was married to Don Vincente T. Dominguez, Argentine Minister to England. The wedding took place in London.

—William Hobson, of Campbellsville, and Miss Mary, the pretty daughter of W. P. Stephenson, were married Wednesday at the bride's father's near Crab Orchard.

—Mr. John E. Turner, one of the cleverest young men on the L. & N., and pretty Miss Lena Wells, of Junction City, were married on the 16th. They left at once for the World's Fair, and after Oct. 1st will be at home in Livingston. May happiness and good fortune ever attend them.

—If the reports we hear can be relied on one of our young merchants is going to take unto himself a wife. The young lady who is to play quite an important role in the ceremony does not live here, nor even very close to this place, but she quite frequently visits here and is very well known to the majority of our society people. It is said that the happy event will occur the latter part of next month.

—Mr. Churchill H. Yeager, an excellent young gentleman of Boyle, and Miss Sue T. Bright, the pretty and lovable daughter of Squire George P. Bright drove into town yesterday and were married at Rev. W. A. Slaymaker's by that gentleman. The groom is 21 and the bride is 18 but they have been lovers a long time and have not entered the holy relation in haste to repeat at leisure, and here's hoping they will never have cause to regret their action of yesterday.

—Henry Wolford Drye, familiarly known as "Brother," of Hustonville, and Miss Nannie Tucker, of Springfield, were married at Louisville Hotel, in Louisville, Wednesday. The bride is said to be a lovely young lady and very accomplished, while the groom is the cleverest kind of a young man and the possessor of fine business attainments.

—At the bride's home near McKinney Wednesday, Miss Belle Lewis, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis, and Mr. S. A. Marriott, of Hardin county, were united in wedlock's holy bonds, Rev. Mr. Bersot, of the Christian church, officiating. The wedding was quite a quiet affair, only a very few intimate friends being invited to be present. They were the recipients of many elegant presents, among them a $100 bill from the bride's aunt who lives in Louisville. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to this place and took the train for the groom's home, where they will reside, and where we hope the richest blessings will attend them.

—Mr. Isaac Hamilton, of Rowland and Mrs. Susan Harris, of this place, were quietly married at Lancaster Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the Holmes House, Rev. A. V. Sizemore officiating. It could not be called an elopement for each of the contracting parties is far past the 21st mile post in life, but wishing to make the marriage as quiet an affair as possible they drove to Lancaster and were made one after God's holy ordinance. The marriage is a general surprise and shows that Mr. Hamilton has done his wooing in a very clandestine manner. The groom is too well known for us to comment on there is hardly a school boy in this section who has not heard of "Uncle Ike," and further heard that he is a mighty clever man and the possessor of a heap of hard-earned cash. The bride is an excellent lady and will make her happy husband a kind and loving helpmeet. After the ceremony, which was said in Mr. Sizemore's most impressive manner, the bride and groom drove home and are now pleasantly located at Rowland, where we sincerely hope they will spend many years of joy and happiness. The INTERIOR JOURNAL extends its heartiest congratulations and best wishes.

—Bert Roberts, who was sentenced to the pen from Casey county a few years ago for killing Baker, was transferred to the Anchorage asylum upon the belief that he was insane. A few days ago he walked out and returned to his old home but Judge Myers had him arrested and taken back to Frankfort.

—Owingsville was nearly devastated by flames Tuesday. The loss is estimated at $165,000. Among the buildings burned was the fine new Christian church.

—Merchant—"Did you deliver my message to Mr. Smith?" Boy—"No, sir, he was out and the office locked." Merchant—"Well, why didn't you wait for him, as I told you?" Boy—"There was a sign on the door saying 'Return at once,' so I came right back."—St. Louis Star Sayings.

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL

STANFORD, KY., SEPTEMBER 22, 1893

W. P. WALTON.

6 OR 8 PAGES.
EVERY FRIDAY.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Representative,

HARVEY HELM.

For Superintendent of Public Schools,

W. F. McCRARY.

As predicted the president appointed William B. Hornblower, of New York, as associate justice of the United States to succeed the late Samuel Blatchford. He is said to be a fine lawyer and an exception to the rule which declares that preacher's sons are the worst of all. His father, Rev. Dr. Hornblower, was a professor in the Theological Seminary at Alleghany, Pa. The appointee is an especial favorite of the president and that settles it that he is a good man. He is only 42, making him the youngest but one of any person ever appointed to the supreme bench. His patronymic is peculiar, but it is said it is not descriptive, as he is not giving to blow his own horn, being a modest and retiring gentleman and scholar.

They know how to handle mobs in Virginia and uphold the majesty of the law. At Roanoke, a negro, assaulted a white woman and was lodged in jail. A mob attempted to take him and lynch him, but the militia was promptly called out and a battle ensued in which ten of the rioters were killed and many more wounded. This is rather a heroic remedy, but desperate cases require such and mobs are getting entirely too promiscuous. More than a score of negroes have been lynched in the South in the last week.

BETWEEN the train robbers and the collisions, the visitor to the World's Fair finds himself in a pretty bad box, but he will continue to go all the same, hoping that his train will escape both. Another fearful wreck is reported near Manteno, Ill., between the first and second sections of a Big Four train. The result was heartbreaking. Nine were killed outright and 20 severely injured. Several Louisville persons, including J. G. Sweet, are among the killed.

WHEN South Carolina replaced the gallant old confederate soldier, U. S. Senator Wade Hampton, with a populist named Irby, it was a step from the sublime to the ridiculous. A dispatch from Washington says this beautiful specimen of a latter day Southern statesman was before the police court in that city charged with being drunk and disorderly and carrying concealed weapons. The State deserves the disgrace that has been brought upon her.

THE death of Maj. Wickliffe Chapman which occurred at Frankfort Tuesday after a short illness of pneumonia, removes one of the mildest mannered and most lovable men we ever knew. He was a nephew of Gov. Knott's wife and during the governor's term was assistant adjutant general. He was very happily married to Miss Edith Gaither, a beautiful and lovely girl, in early manhood, and she is left to suffer the terrible loss.

THEY are nearly always two sides to a case. Gov. Brown sought to make capital by having a suit for $94,000 filed against the Mason-Foard Co. for balance due the State on penitentiary lease. The matter was turned over to the Master Commissioner of Franklin and he finds what the company claimed all the time that the State owes them $12,234. The report will be contested but is very apt to be sustained.

If Miss Pollard's story of her seduction by Col. Breckinridge, as published in the New York World, even approximates the truth, the Congressman is a hypocrite and a Janus faced fraud of the first water. Addressing Christian Endeavor and other religious societies and seducing women do not comport, and it looks very much like the colonel is in a hole.

THE report of the committee on rules was adopted in the House. Ex-Speaker Reed used his parliamentary weapons to defeat the adoption of the part which provides that when an order is adopted the speaker shall call the committee for report, and until that order is exhausted no motion shall be entertained; but he was signally sat down upon.

TRENTON Senators are yet to make speeches on the silver question. The country is begging relief and for bread the House of Lords only gives them wind. Nero fiddling when Rome was burning was a far more inviting spectacle. This sort of business will continue till the people rise up and shut off their wind forever.

THE World's Fair directors decided by a unanimous vote that the show shall close as stated Oct. 31. All the same, its dollars to doughnuts that it will not. No other exposition of the kind has closed at the time first named.

A LETTER from Hon. Fontaine F. Bobbitt received too late for publication says that he is out of the race for the Senate for reasons that would compel him to decline if he were given the nomination.

NEWSY NOTES.

The American Mission at Rome has been raised to an Embassy.

Dock White was given 99 years at Richmond for the murder of another negro.

A. S. Youmans, of Carthage, Mo., a "sooner," was lynched by a party of racers in the Cherokee Strip. In a battle with the racers three "sooners" were killed and their valuable claims taken up by the men who had made the race honestly.

Treasurer Hale has sent letters to all the collecting officers of Kentucky, urging them to use extraordinary diligence in forwarding money so that the State may be spared the humiliation of a suspension of payments. On the 1st of October $800,000 is due the school fund.

A number of the Cherokee boomers were burned to death in a prairie fire. The Louisville Times says that the casualties resulting from Saturday's rush upon Cherokee Strip largely outnumber those to the American army in the battle of New Orleans, and equal those of some of the historical battles of the Mexican war.

Owingsville, Cynthiana, Adairville and several other Kentucky towns, including Louisville, have recently suffered heavy losses from fires of mysterious origin. Is the fire bug abroad in the land, or are these conflagrations results of the friction produced by big insurance on small properties? Queen safe?

Nearly all the men connected with the daring train robbery in Michigan last week are under arrest. The confession of one of the prisoners has revealed a conspiracy involving not only several unemployed railroad men, but the messenger, baggeman and brakeman of the train robbed. Of the $70,000 or more stolen, $14,000 has been recovered.

A saddle horse got loose recently at Columbia, Tenn., and seemed bent on suicide. He struck the railroad track and looked for a train. Evading the men in pursuit he walked onto a bridge and laid down in centre of the track. He was saved from death by several men tying his legs together and dragging him to the roadway.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

An account of Mrs. Sam Spooner's death appears in our Rowland letter.

A dispatch from Paris states that "Mammy" Pullins, colored, aged 122, has just died.

At 5 o'clock yesterday morning of heart disease Mr. Granville L. Mershon breathed his last. He had been very feeble for several years and more than once he had heart trouble from which his family did not think he could possibly recover. On Sunday last Mr. Mershon accompanied by Mr. A. P. Pendleton took a drive of several hours and returned feeling none the worse from it. That night, however, he had one of his attacks and growing worse all of the time the end finally came Thursday morning as stated above. The deceased was in his 63d year; had been a member of the Baptist church for years and was an unusually clever, kind-hearted man. He was married in early life to Miss Francis Skidmore and she and five children, all grown, survive him. After services at the residence at 10 o'clock this morning, by Rev. A. V. Sizemore the remains will be laid to rest in Buffalo Springs Cemetery.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

The next meeting of the Southern Presbytery will be with the church at Stanford.

There will be no preaching at the Methodist church Sunday. Mr. Arnold will not return before the middle of next week.

Eld. Joseph Ballou has just closed a 10 days' meeting at Antioch, in Madison, while presiding in 30 additions. There were nine additions the last night.

Rev. W. E. Arnold's continuance at his charges here and at McKendree gives general satisfaction. A more excellent man or a better preacher than Mr. Arnold is hard to find.

Rev. John Bell Gibson's meeting in Monticello is creating wide-spread interest. Meeting one week old and 15 additions. There have not been such large crowds at church since Rev. George O. Barnes preached there.

THE WORLD'S FAIR AND AMERICAN RAILWAYS.

The Queen & Crescent Route, widely known as the road running the "Finest Trains in the South," is in the field to carry everybody from the South to the World's Fair at Chicago. No part of the Southern country is left uncared for by this great railway and its connections. The Through Car System is an admirable exposition of the wonderful capabilities of American railroading. From New Orleans through Sleeping Cars run daily, morning and evening, carrying its passengers by Cincinnati or Louisville, as they may select.

From Shreveport, Vicksburg and Jackson another Through Sleeping Car Line comes to join and become a part of the magnificent Ventilated Through Trains, which, passing through Birmingham and the famous Wills Valley of Alabama, is joined at Chattanooga by the train from Jacksonville, Fla., Brunswick and Atlanta, Ga., over the R. T. & G. R. Y., and proceeds north over the beautiful Cincinnati Southern, through the grandest natural scenery and most attractive historical country in the world, to Oakdale, where another magnificent Pullman Car is received, coming from the Richmond & Danville system from Charleston, S. C. through Columbia, S. C., the beautiful French Broad country, and Asheville, C., and Knoxville, Tenn.

The time to Chicago is made so as to afford the most convenient hours for departures from the principal cities and arrivals in Chicago.

Passengers can purchase tickets good over one in each of the river, and returning via another if they desire a variable route without extra charge. Or they can go via Cincinnati, returning via Louisville, or vice versa.

Round trip tickets on sale at reduced rates. Agents of the Chicago line will on request assist in looking up rooms or accommodations for visitors to the Fair.

Everything that an almost perfect system can devise to deserve the praise and patronage of the traveling public has been provided. Any of the Agents of the companies named below will cheerfully give all possible information and assistance:

THEIR NEW DRESSES.

CREATIONS FOR FANNY DAVENPORT AND LILLIAN RUSSELL.

Two Artists Who Know What to Wear.
The Collet is Now the Fashionable Fad.
Simple Rules For Making Three or Four
Kinds of Their New Trimming.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

The collet is now the fashionable fad in the way of trimming of ordinary dresses, and it is also designed for the purpose of affording something that is next to nothing to wear around the neck and shoulders. There are many varieties, some of them more remarkable than beautiful and others so pretty and so stylish that one forgets what collets are. They are really only make believe, as they are so charming let us add them and get one if we can, each of us. If we cannot buy one already made, perhaps we can make one ourselves. We can if we know how and are willing to try.

Let me tell you all how to make three or four styles. One—and perhaps two—of the most striking of them all has a ripple cape in the back and comes down to a deep point in front. This was made of corded black silk, and had no ornament save a Brandenburg to fasten it. The points are cut on the straight and the rest in a semicircle, and this is joined by a seam in the back. It is lined with taffeta in a bright or opalescent color. The edge at the top is simply turned in and hemmed, and as it meets half way down the bust it seems to give a V shaped effect to the waist of the gown. The outside and linings are cut just alike and the edges stitched. The seam is then turned where the neck part is hemmed, the edges are slightly pressed with a not very warm iron and the fastenings sewn on. It need not take over an hour's work, and the style is very good.

Another collet is arranged in two plaited ruffles, one deeper than the other, and the ends pointed and reaching the waist, where they hang naturally crossed. This need not be lined if made of middling thick goods, and the edges are bound with ribbon of a happily contrasting shade. Cashmere, black or dark brown, with green ribbon is very pretty. Of course it is understood that the green is to be of a soft and artistic shade, though, to be sure, almost all shades are used now. But we are supposing that the lady is a woman of genuine taste. The collar is lined with silk, the color of the ribbon and box plaited so that it stands up as a pierrot ruffle.

Another very ornate collet has 18 pieces of black silk cut in shapes something like a baseball bat. The two front ones are the longest, and the others graduate in length. Each is finished separately, and then they are tacked together from the under side and flared a very little at the neck, so that the collar may be formed with scallops at the top. The different pieces are all rounded, top and bottom, and lined with thin silk and interlined with crinoline to give them shape. Each one of these pieces is beaded with a few fine jet beads set on irregularly, and on the shoulders, where the scallops are but 9 inches long, there is a black lace frill, which sets up high, so as to give place to sleeve. The front scallops are 14 inches long, and to the four center front ones are four rich tassels of jet, with fancy headings. This is a very rich little collet and can be made of black or dark colored velvet, and it would be handy for ladies who wear low evening dresses to slip on to protect the chest when going out of warm rooms. It could also be worn over a house dress in cool weather indoors, and whenever it is worn it will give a dressy effect to a plain gown.

Many of the collets are more in the form of ruffles and double ruffles than anything. One pretty one is of corinth red silk and is cut on the straight, the lower ruffle being 10 inches from the neck line and the upper two inches shorter. At the top there is a triple box plaited ruffle of the same that makes a becoming frill about the neck. With two loops and ends of grosgrain ribbon this is a very dainty collet for a young lady. Black silk, satin or velvet would be even handsomer than red, which is rather too voyante to be in the best taste.

I have noticed among the early fall goods some that are called painted silks. The silk is generally pongee in dark or light shades or black, with little clusters of dots of a highly contrasting color apparently stenciled upon them. A black pongee had emerald green dots, three in a cluster, and another had scarlet dots of seven—one in the center a little larger than the others, and the six around it. It may be that this is a clever device of printed silk, but it looks like painted silk.

I saw a gown that was being made for Fanny Davenport, and there were masses of white camellias and their green foliage painted on the rich grosgrain. Painted flowers of quite large size were also seen on a pale lilac silk, the flowers being white lilac and pale pink azaleas. The silk seems to take the paint without showing any oily margin, and if painting becomes a real fashion instead of being something that is only seen on the gowns of the favored few it will open the door to great possibilities and also the door of hope for the young artist whose forte lies in painting flowers.

Lillian Russell has a new pale blue satin gown for home, and on this is painted a bewildering maze of tall grasses, from which peep scarlet poppies. The different greens in the grasses and the leaves of the poppies are most artistically treated, and the flowers look as if they grew there. The painted pattern extends all around the skirt. The sleeves are puffed, which fall back, leaving the round white arms exposed, except for an undersleeve of spangled blue tulle. A wide scarf of that is tied across the bust and falls to the feet. With this are a tiny tea cap, a bunch of spangled tulle as big as an ordinary rosette, and on top of it one of open poppy and one half open bud. This contrasts well with the abundant tresses of the fair singer.

And here let me say that this hair all belongs on that lady's head. Many persons assert that she wears a wig, but it is not so. All the daughters in the Leonard family have magnificent hair. Lillian Russell's real name was Helen Leonard until she married Braham, and later Solomon. She knows how to dress well and does it. So, though she makes no pretense to lead the fashion, it shows that painted silks will certainly find favor with those who can paint and those who can afford to pay an artist.

Some of the new plaids are frightful, the pattern is so large and striking, but others again are very handsome. I saw one that was very ladylike, and at the same time it was in the height of style. It was of gray twilled cheviot, with bias diamond shaped plaids formed by white lines, three one way and two the other. There was something very refined and delicate about this plaid. It is a pity all are not as neat and refined. The dress of which it was made was cut surplice waist over a V of white lace over pale blue silk. The sleeves were in soft double puff, the forearm piece being also of plaid. The bottom of the skirt was perfectly plain, save for three lines of white castle braid.

The hat to go with this dress was of lustrous gray straw, turned up to trim, with three turquoise velvet rosettes and two fancy plumes of gray chicken feathers. The saw tooth straws, I think, will be worn quite far into the autumn. They did not make their appearance until summer was well advanced, and they became so popular at once that the fancy for them will be long dying out. Some are trimmed quite plainly, and others have perfect nightmares of feathers upon them.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

Not a New Thing.

Modern critics of ladies' full dress costumes would have us believe that what they call "the exposure" is a recent invention.

If a traveler from a distant country unfamiliar with the English and French fashions, were to contemplate the representation of a ball dress of 40 years ago he would be puzzled to account for the remarkable shape of the ladies of that period. If the traveler were anything of a naturalist, he would set them down in his own mind as belonging to a new species of the genus homo.

BALL DRESS OF 1851.

Looking at the prints of the period, we should think that the artists intended to convey a satire on the ladies' dress if we did not today frequently meet with such figures in real life. The costume, with much pretension to elegance, exhibits most of the faults of the modern style of dress. It combines the shockingly decollete feature with the pinched waist, and even the hoop skirt of that period was in recent danger of resurrection.

ELLEN SANSON.

A Woman Parliamentarian.

Lilian Cole Bethel has compiled and published a "Compendium and Question Book of Parliamentary Law" for the use of clubs and organizations unfamiliar with parliamentary usage. She has carefully prepared it from the standard works on the subject, such as Cushing's, Robert's, Neely's and Smith's. The necessary parliamentary programme for small clubs and societies has been simplified and arranged in a way that will be easily understood.

HANGING PIN-BALLS.

A Pretty Ornament for the Sitting or Sleeping Room.

A pretty little bunch of hanging pin-balls is made of apple-green surah silk, suspended and tied with white baby ribbon.

There are eight balls. Cut eight circular pieces from the silk, each piece to measure ten inches in diameter. Turn under the edge and face each one around with the white ribbon.

Then place a bunch of wool wadding, sprinkled with orris, in the center, and tie the silk tightly around it with the ribbon, and tack a pretty rosette bow of the ribbon at the side.

Suspend each one from ends of the ribbon, cut in different lengths; and fasten them all at the top, under a full bow of the ribbon.

This is a pretty as well as useful ornament, to be hung on the mirror over the dressing table, and the round balls are very convenient for holding the many little stick pins that are now used so generally.

UNDUE CORPULENCY.

How It Can Be Reduced by Proper Diet and Exercise.

There are two kinds of women in this world who are morbidly unhappy from what they choose to regard as nature's injustice to them. These two specimens are those who are either extremely thin or who are burdened with an excess of flesh. The former, however, though it may be treason to expose their little frauds, may help nature out by sundry pads and a fluffy style of dressing, but the stout woman, despite all her efforts to hide her undue corpulence, is conscious always that her flesh is unwieldy. But to such as these there is only one method of actual reduction, and that is by a combination of diet and exercise.

Some of the new plaids are frightful, the pattern is so large and striking, but others again are very handsome. I saw one that was very ladylike, and at the same time it was in the height of style. It was of gray twilled cheviot, with bias diamond shaped plaids formed by white lines, three one way and two the other. There was something very refined and delicate about this plaid. EARNING APPROVAL.

Little Tommy Didn't Believe in Hiding His Light Under a Bushel.

He was a very, very little boy, and he had come to school that morning puffed up with pride because he had a new accomplishment. "I can dress myself, now," he said to the teacher, and her praise was unstinted.

"I am very proud of a little boy who can dress himself," she said. "I'm sure he will be a great comfort in school, he can do so many things now, and he is so anxious to do them well."

Little Tommy drew a long breath of delight and trudged off to his seat. He never meant to be naughty any more; he was sure he never should be. But alas! school grew tiresome and Tommy fidgety. He forgot his reputation and indulged in several remarkable antics behind the teacher's back; then he was discovered and condemned to exile behind the door.

Time passed and Tommy was forgotten, but the committee man drove up, and while he was alighting, Tommy was remembered. The teacher hastened behind the door to release him from discovery and disgrace.

There he stood, with nothing on but his little shirt and his little shoes and stockings. His eyes shone; his round face was smiling and eager. He looked up triumphantly, waiting for approval. He had been praised once for a similar deed; why not again?

"I can undress me, too!" he cried, in glee.

Smells Good and Keeps Away Moths.

A pleasant perfume and moth preventative is made of cloves, caraway seeds, nutmeg, mace, cinnamon and Tonquin beans, of each an ounce. Add as much Florentine orris root as will equal the other ingredients. Put together, grind all to a powder and put in little bags among your clothes.

Each Guest Welcomed with Music.

A fashion among artistic people is the hanging upon the inside of the door a welcoming harp or orchal harmonica. With every movement of the door small metal balls hung upon wires strike the strings of the sounding board, sending forth faint, sweet music.

OF SACRED SONG.

Instances of Its Softening Influence on the Lives of Men.

Plato thought that athletics, when pursued to excess, hardened the moral nature, and suggested that athletics should study music, as one of the most powerful of softening influences. A story is told of the Emperor Theodosius, which illustrates the power of music over the emotions.

The citizens of Antioch revolted against the exactions of Theodosius, and dashed to pieces his statue and that of the empress together with those of his two sons. Subsequently they repented and sent Flavianus, their bishop, to Constantinople to appease the wrath of the emperor. Theodosius rebuked the bishop, declaring that nothing but the infliction of severe punishment would satisfy him.

The emperor was fond of music and while feasting had a choir of boys sing to him. The bishop took charge of these choristers and taught them to sing a choral, composed by himself, which in mournful strains described the sorrow and despair of the Antiochians. The pathos of the music interested the emperor; the words fascinated him. At last, much affected, he called out: "Antioch is forgiven!"

The power of sacred song was strikingly exhibited by an incident of the Crimean war, told in a volume of Scotch anecdotes.

Duncan Matheson, a Bible-reader to the soldiers in the Crimea, was returning one night to his lodgings in an old stable. Sickened by the sights he had seen, and depressed with the thought that the siege of Sebastopol was likely to last for months, he trudged along in the mud, knee-deep. Happening to look up, he saw the stars shining calmly in the clear sky. Weariness gave place to the thought that in Heaven is rest, and he began to sing aloud the old hymn:

"How bright these glorious spirits shine!
Whence all their bright array?"

The next day was wet and stormy. While going his rounds, Matheson came upon a soldier standing under the veranda of an old house. The man was in soiled and ragged clothes, and his shoes were so worn that they did not keep his feet from the mud. The Bible-reader drew him into conversation, cheered him by encouraging words, and gave him money to buy shoes.

"I am not what I was yesterday," answered the man, his heart opening to Matheson's sympathy. "Last night I was tired of life and of this blundering siege. I took my musket and went down yonder, determined to blow out my brains. As I got round that hillock I heard some one singing. 'How bright these glorious spirits shine!' It recalled me to the Sabbath school where I used to sing it and the religious truths I had heard there."

"I felt ashamed of being such a coward. I said to myself: 'Here is a comrade as badly off as I am, and he is not a coward—he's bearing it!' I felt that that man had something which I did not possess to make him accept with cheerfulness our hard lot. I went back to my tent, and to-day I am seeking that thing which made the singer so happy."

"Do you know who the singer was?" asked Matheson.

"No."

"Well, I was the singer seeking comfort and hope in the song you heard."

The tears came into the soldier's eyes as he thrust the money into Matheson's hands, saying:

"After what you've done for me, I can't take it from you."—Youth's Companion.

On this doctors don't disagree. It may be regarded as an assured fact that the delegates to the Pan American Congress at Washington, who travel over the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway will, with one accord, praise its scenery and train service. There is nothing in the way of lovely mountain views and picturesque valleys of the Virginias, to compare with that through which the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad passes. There is nothing of historic nature in America as great as a trip through the Virginias and there is no other railroad in America superior to the C. & O. in the smoothness and stability of its tracks, the F. V. Vestibule Limited being one of the famous trains of the world. The Chesapeake & Ohio passes through Bull Run, Manassas and other noted battle fields and is in all respects the best route for the West, North-West and South-West to the National Capital. Nashville, Tenn., March 6, 1893.—The Stockton Medicine Co., Nashville, Tenn.

Gentlemen: It gives me exceeding pleasure to speak of your Antiseptic, as I consider it something wonderful in the way of medicine. My old servant, Albert, who is 72 years old, was very sick with pneumonia complicated with heart trouble and dropsy. I called in my family physician and gave him every attention, but the doctor finally told me there was no hope and the only thing that could do was to make him comfortable until the end. At this point I decided to give him Stockton's Antiseptic, as it seemed to be performing almost miracles for others. It was given in regular doses every three hours and the fever began to decrease from the first dose, and a decided improvement was noticed the first day. In three days he was sitting up and in a week he was back at his work as usual and is regaining his strength very fast. I conscientiously believe it saved the old man's life. Respectfully yours,

A KINDERGARTEN PIONEER.

Career of a Woman of Pluck, Talent and Great Usefulness.

The kindergarten system of the Connecticut valley and a large contiguous region in western Massachusetts and Rhode Island owes much of its usefulness to Mrs. Elizabeth R. Abbott, who has been an active educator for the past 10 years. She was a pioneer in kindergarten work in Connecticut. Mrs. Abbott was born in Lowell, Mass., in 1852.

In girlhood she became a disciple of Elizabeth Peabody and intended to devote her energies to the kindergarten method of teaching. Her father, W. S. Robinson of Lowell, died, leaving her without resources before she had fitted herself for self support, and she engaged successively in various callings until she drifted into Mrs. Shaw's charity kindergarten and nursery in Boston. Meanwhile she had taught a country school and "boarded round" in Maine, had kept a private school, tried bookkeeping and learned to set type.

Her position in Mrs. Shaw's institution was nominally that of "second assistant," but the duties proved to be those of a kitchen maid or cook, yet it

THROUGH SLEEPING CARS

VIA BIG FOUR ROUTE TO THE WORLD'S FAIR.

We all love comfort, especially when traveling, and what a great comfort it is to be able to take a sleeping car at your own home which runs right through to Chicago without change and lands passengers at the entrance gate of the great World's Fair without a single change or transfer of any kind. How can this be accomplished? Why simply by asking your local agent for a ticket via the Big Four Route, which is absolutely the only line running through sleeping cars in connection with the E. T. V. & G. Railway and Queen & Crescent Route direct to the World's Fair Grounds and landing passengers convenient to the World's Fair Hotel District. Through Sleeping Car leaves Marion 11:15 A. M., Atlanta 2:10 P. M., Rome 4:55 P. M., Chattanooga 7:25 P. M., and arrives at Chicago 5:15 P. M. Ask for tickets via Big Four Route and for further information address D. B. Martin, General Passenger Agent, Cincinnati.

The Queen & Crescent and Louisville Southern will make a round-trip rate of 1½ fare to New Orleans on account of the meeting of the colored Knights of Pythias Supreme Lodge, Sept. 25-30. Tickets on sale 22 to 27 on certificate plan. Solid vestibuled trains run to New Orleans from Cincinnati in 26 hours. It is 94 miles the shortest line. These roads have been named as the official route of the I. O. O. F. for the South, on account of their first-class train service, elegant equipment and quick time and they will sell tickets cheap to the I. O. O. F. demonstration in Chicago, Sept. 23-30. Ask agent for rates. Choice of routes via Cincinnati or Louisville. W. C. Rinearson, general passenger agent, Cincinnati.

The Q. & C. and L. S. announce a one fare rate to Versailles 27-28 on account of the re-union of the Orphan Brigade, with special train from Lexington at 9 A. M. on the 27th. The same roads will sell tickets to Cincinnati 25-27 at 1½ fares for the round trip, on account of the Young Men's Institute Meeting of Grand Council. See agents or address W. E. Rinearson, G. P. A., Cincinnati.

A Good Thing to Keep at Hand.

From the Troy, Kas., Chief: Some years ago we were very much subject to severe spells of cholera morbus, and now when we any symptoms that usually precede that ailment, such as sickness at the stomach, we have been advised to have a hand found Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy the very thing to straighten out in such cases, and always keep it about. We are not writing this for a pay testimonial, but to let our readers know that it is a good thing to have handy in the house. For sale by W. B. McRoberts, Druggist, Stanford.

Miss Robinson entered a kindergarten college and graduated in 1883. She has studied and waited seven years for the fulfillment of her hopes and was enabled to put her hard earned experience to immediate use. She had taught some in the charity schools of Boston and was engaged to introduce the kindergarten system into the Hillside Avenue school at Waterbury, Conn. She was married in 1885 to George S. Abbott of Waterbury, but continued to teach her classes until the little ones originally placed in her care had graduated for the primary departments of the public schools.

Since resigning from official connection with school work Mrs. Abbott has kept up her interest in kindergarten teaching and encouraged and helped others to extend and maintain the system. She has been prominent in the Connecticut Valley Kindergarten association, and also in founding and strengthening associations for the advancement of women, among them the Old and New Club of Boston, the Woman's club of Malden, Mass., and the Woman's club of Waterbury.

HELPLESS WOMEN.

They Still Exist In Their Picturesque In-capabilities.

When the extreme of the tailor made fashion was replaced by the present soft frills and furbelows, a universal cry of jubilation arose from the newspapers announcing that now women would become once more as sweetly feminine and helpless as in the Miss Burney days, when they swooned at the slightest provocation, from which we may infer that a woman's character is as protean as her garments.

However, if the newspapers had stopped in their headlong joy to reason upon the subject, perhaps the prospect of a revival of the Evelina type would not have seemed such matter for gratulation. If a woman once begins to be helpless, there is no telling where she will stop. It is very nice indeed to have a pretty woman unable to cross a fallen log in the woods without a man's assistance. But if she faints dead away in the middle of a five acre field when a bull is beginning to lower his head and raise his tail her dependent condition is not quite so pleasant. Then the ability to kill her petticoates and run is a quality more likely to be appreciated by her escort.

The public need never have feared that helplessness was a lost art, for the incapable type has not become extinct by any means. It was flourishing like the green bay tree in retired nooks and corners during the very height of tailor reign and athletics. There now exists a woman who, prevented by her mother from marrying her lover in their youth, was wedded to him when about 50 years old. She still wore the banded hair and dove colored, full skirted dresses that had gone out of date years ago, and she was, oh, so delightfully helpless and dependent! Her husband came home one winter day and found her half frozen and crying, without a spark of fire in the house. The servant had left in the morning, and the fire had gone out, and although there was abundant fuel the mistress did not know how to build a fire, and so was compelled to sit in the cold until her husband returned and brought his vigorous mind to bear on the case.

If picturesque incapability should really prevail again in all its mighty inertia—of which there is no probability—certain serious disadvantages may appear that are now hidden under the ruffles and rosebuds, and the present time may be regretted, when a woman winds her watch, keeps her appointments, answers business letters and appreciates her husband instead of merely adoring him.

NO. 2 Vanderpool Smokeless.

We call this a smokeless coal because it does not make a heavy black smoke that ordinary coals do, but it is like that made from a wood fire. We predict for this coal a place in the market that will capture the trade "body and soul." It carries with it the reputation of quality not found in any other coal mine at this time. The smokeless feature will insure for it a quick sale in the cities, because those want it who worry the city authorities about the smoke nuisance. Add to this the smokeless feature and then you have in this coal the thing that makes it a good coal. They say they can get it, in order to keep the coals in good humor, for there will be no choked pipes to be frequently cleared. This coal mines in very large blocks and will produce 75 per cent. Lump, and big pieces, and fine, free burning. The smokeless feature will insure for it a quick sale in the cities, because those want it who worry the city authorities about the smoke nuisance.
